

What is the Online Course-by-Course Transfer of Credit Database?

The purpose of the Online Course-by-Course Transfer of Credit Database is to enable users to view transfer information in a more interactive format. Transfer arrangements are shown on a sending to receiving institution basis. The database contains course-by-course credit transfer information for the academic years from 1997-1998 to the current academic year. Each record in the Online Course-by-Course Transfer of Credit Database represents one course offered by a "Sending Institution". For each of these courses, the transfer credit which may be awarded by one or more "Receiving Institutions" is shown. The results of a search will be displayed in table format. The 1st column shows the course name and the 2nd column shows the "Receiving Institution" which may accept a transfer, the 3rd column shows the corresponding transfer course name and number, the 4th column shows any comments associated with the transfer arrangement. The Online Course-by-Course Transfer of Credit Database does not list every course offered at every "Sending Institution". It does include transfer information provided by the "Receiving Institutions", representing established transfer agreements and arrangements. The absence of information about a particular course or that course's transfer potential at a particular "Receiving Institution" does not necessarily mean that credit transfer is unavailable. It indicates that no formal agreement has been established, or, if a new agreement is in place, the Online Course-by-Course Transfer of Credit Database has not yet been updated. Additionally, credit transfer is considered by "Receiving Institutions" on request, and credit may ultimately be granted. To be certain about transfer possibilities, as well as prerequisites required, check with the appropriate institution involved.
