Dear Mr. Speaker:

As President of Treasury Board, and on behalf of the Public Service Secretariat, I am pleased to present the accompanying annual report for 2010-11. This report outlines the Secretariat's accomplishments in supporting and helping employees to increase their capabilities and achieve their potential in the workplace.

The report also highlights the Secretariat's progress toward realizing its mission to enhance the human resource capacity of the core public service to deliver exceptional programs and services.

As the Minister responsible for the Public Service Secretariat and accountable for the results contained within this report, I am very proud of the Secretariat's work and would like to thank all of the Secretariat's employees for their commitment, professionalism and dedication. I congratulate each of them on their successes this year.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'Thomas W. Marshall', written in a cursive style.

Thomas W. Marshall, Q.C.
Minister of Finance and
President of Treasury Board

Introduction

2010-11 has been a significant year in terms of performance reporting under the Transparency and Accountability Act. It is the first year that the Public Service Secretariat (Secretariat) will be reporting on its mission statement and accompanying indicators. These are in addition to the 2008-2011 goals and 2010-11 objectives established for each of the Secretariat's strategic issues in the 2008-2011 Business Plan.

The following pages describe how the 2008-2011 Strategic Human Resource Management Strategy (HRMS) has been a central component of the business plan and has played a critical role in helping achieve the goals and objectives identified. Design of this Strategy was completed during the first year of the 2008-11 business planning cycle. As of March 31, 2011, the Secretariat, along with other key partners, had made significant progress in the Strategy's implementation.

This report contains three major sections. The first section provides a descriptive profile of the Secretariat, its shared commitments, and highlights and accomplishments for the 2010-11 reporting period. The second section contains a detailed report and comparative discussion of the Secretariat's performance indicators. The third describes future opportunities and challenges, and presents the financial statements for the 2010-11 fiscal year. The appendices contain further details on the Secretariat's mandate and brief descriptions of each of the operating divisions.

SECTION I

Overview of the Public Service Secretariat

Human resource (HR) management in the Government of Newfoundland and Labrador involves four key partners including:

- Public Service Secretariat
- Public Service Commission
- Strategic Human Resource Management Divisions
- Departmental Executive and Management Teams

Within this partnership, the Secretariat supports the Treasury Board, a committee of Cabinet responsible for the day to day management and administration (including human resource management) of the public service. The Secretariat's complete mandate statement is included in Appendix A, page 31.

Vision

Exceptional People. Exceptional Public Service.

Mission

By 2011, the Public Service Secretariat (Secretariat) will have supported the enhancement of the human resource capacity of the core public service to deliver exceptional programs and services.

Lines of Business

The Secretariat carries out its HR management mandate through three lines of business:

- Leadership in human resources
- Direction and support to government departments and central agencies
- Professional guidance and advice to the employer.

In addition to these main lines of business, the Secretariat holds responsibility for coordinating Government support for the development of the province's Francophone community, through a federal/provincial cooperation agreement. This is accomplished through the Office of French Services, under the direction of the Minister Responsible for Francophone Affairs.

Budget and Staffing

In 2010-11, the Secretariat operated with an approved budget of $11.6 million<sup>1</sup> and a staff of approximately seventy-two distributed between two branches: Human Resources Branch and the Labour Relations Branch. The majority of staff are located in St. John's, with one position located in each of Labrador (Happy Valley - Goose Bay) and the West Coast of the Island (Corner Brook).

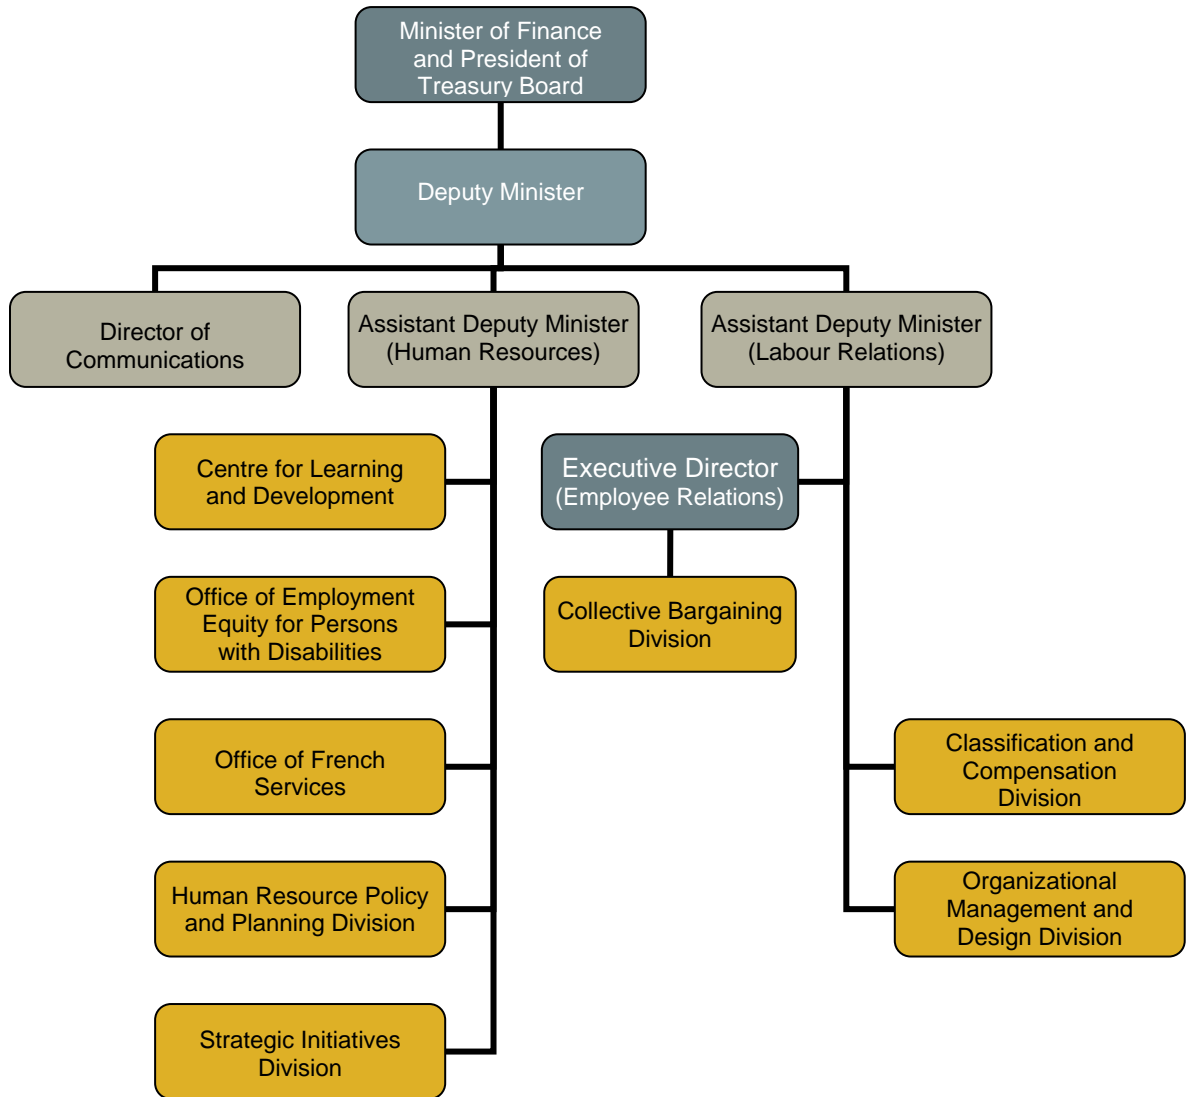

As shown in the organizational chart, the Secretariat operates eight Divisions. The Director of Communications reports directly to the Deputy Minister and supports the Secretariat and the Department of Finance. A description of divisional functions and responsibilities is provided in the appendices.

SECTION II

Reports on Performance

Mission: Report on Performance 2008-09 to 2010-11

Newfoundland and Labrador's core public service performs an important function by providing essential programs and services to all citizens to the province. Government recognizes that the interaction between employees and their work environment can have a significant impact on organizational productivity and most importantly, service quality. Effective management of resources is essential to achieving policy and program goals, and in attracting and retaining highly skilled and knowledgeable employees. Ultimately, organizational success depends on having employees who have the competencies required to address current and future program and service delivery requirements.

Changing retirement trends, the aging of the population, and gaps between labour supply and demand are providing an opportunity for Government to adopt innovative approaches to the development and support of leading-edge employee policies; healthy and safe work environments; competitive attraction and retention strategies; and the continuous training and development of public service employees.

The HRMS has been created to guide Government's investment in each of these areas, allowing employees to build a rewarding career in the public service, and supporting them in the provision of excellence in service delivery.

Mission

By 2011, the Public Service Secretariat will have supported the enhancement of the human resource capacity of the core public service to deliver exceptional programs and services.

- Stakeholders are consulted.
- HR strategy development involves the identification of achievable goals and objectives, as well as relevant best practices.
- Research-based evidence supports HR planning and policy development.
- Existing HR policies are reviewed and recommendations are made.

Leadership is provided for the implementation of the corporate HRMS through the following actions:

- Partnerships with departments and other government entities are initiated.
- A communication plan is developed and implemented as needed.
- Progress in the area of strategic HR management is monitored.
- Organizational performance is monitored.

Results

HRMS is continually updated and developed. Work was completed on the development of Government's Human Resource Management Strategy (HRMS) with the fall 2009 launch of "Creating Tomorrow's Public Service...Excellence in Public Service Delivery." Recognizing that human resource management continues to evolve, the HRMS contained a mix of specific initiatives and ongoing research and development commitments to ensure that the Secretariat was positioned to identify and react to new issues and priorities as they emerged while addressing current critical needs. To ensure ongoing development and adjustment of the Strategy, the implementation phase has included two important formal feedback loops - regular feedback to the Clerk of Executive Council and regular updates to Treasury Board.

HR issues are identified and prioritized. Primary sources for the identification of new issues have included the HR accountability reports, Government's Work Environment Survey, and departmental workforce plans. Regular meetings also take place with the Deputy Ministers of HR and the Committee of HR Directors to review strategy progress, revise priorities, and discuss new and emerging issues. The Secretariat has also engaged the HR communities of practice to identify and advise on new issues related to employment relations, HR planning, organizational development and integrated disability management.

In the last three years, issues addressed through discussion with one or more of the above committees over the reporting period have included:

- Communications
- Compensation
- Attraction/retention
- HR service provision
- Health and safety awareness
- Learning and development
- Succession management

These issues have led to the development and further discussion of a number of HR policies and programs.

As new priorities were identified over the course of the HRMS, they have been integrated into the HRMS action plan accordingly. For example, the need for an integrated human resource information system was identified to provide a stable foundation for continuous improvement and modernization of government-wide policies and processes. As a result, the initial planning phase for the design of the system was included as an indicator of performance for 2010-11.

Stakeholders are consulted. Throughout the mission cycle, consultations have continued to inform the development of the major HRMS initiatives. A number of discussions were initiated by the Secretariat with a number of stakeholder groups (e.g. HR Management Divisions in Government's various HR sectors, departments, and other relevant stakeholders). The following activities involved consultation:

- Knowledge management
- Onboarding / Orientation Program
- High demand positions
- HR information system requirements
- Service quality
- HR business process improvements

HR strategy development involves the identification of achievable goals and objectives, as well as relevant best practices. The Secretariat engaged in a formal strategy development process involving employees and executive across Government, as well as those who provide human resource management supports to the core public service. The resulting goals and objectives have been realized over the 3 years following the release of the HRMS.

As of March 31, 2011, the Secretariat is pleased to report the successful completion of the following objective-based activities and initiatives. It should be noted that completion of each would have included extensive research into best practices, as defined above:

- Development of knowledge management document for consultation.
- Release of the new Succession Planning and Management Guidelines.
- Release of the Market Adjustment Policy and Guidelines.

- Completion of core competencies for the Information Management and Administrative Support Professionals occupational groups.
- Support for, and delivery of, new training curriculum in critical thinking, time management, project management, group facilitation, service excellence, leadership, recruitment and staffing, regulatory impact analysis, and employee relations.
- Launch of an e-learning platform for government employees.
- Design of the new program to support departments and managers in results-based management.
- Launch of the Onboarding initiative with all departments and agencies of the core public service to orient new employees to the public service work environment.
- Approval of a number of new or updated human resource policies on the following topics:
  - relocation
  - scent awareness
  - hours of work
  - travel
  - overlapping appointments
  - market adjustment
  - harassment and discrimination-free workplace
  - management dispute resolution
  - occupational health and safety
  - adverse weather
  - amateur sporting events

Research-based Evidence Supports HR Planning and Policy Development.

The decision to proceed with the collection, analysis and reporting of key HR metrics is a strong indicator of the importance that Government places on evidence-informed management. The Secretariat was successful in utilizing a strong evidence base to inform the development and implementation of a number of initiatives related to HR planning and policy (e.g. policies, guidelines, programs, learning and development). This would have included information and findings gathered from the following sources:

- Best practice research (e.g. jurisdictional scans),
- Analysis of labour market trends (e.g. Statistics Canada, the Department of Human Resources, Labour and Employment),
- Workforce demographics (e.g. internal sources - pensions and payroll, external - Statistics Canada),
- Feedback from managers and employees (e.g. consultation, focus groups, Work Environment Survey results),
- Research and data available from academic sources and private sector HR service providers.

Existing HR policies are reviewed and recommendations are made.

The Secretariat supports corporate HR policy review, update and development in an effort to support employees and departments in maintaining a modern, relevant and supportive HR management environment. The following policies were approved by Treasury Board and are being implemented:

- Market Adjustment
- Relocation
- Scent Awareness
- Hours of Work
- Corporate Charge Card
- Travel Advances
- Overlapping Appointments
- Harassment and Discrimination-free Workplace
- Management Dispute Resolution
- Occupational Health and Safety
- Adverse Weather
- Amateur Sporting Events

Partnerships with departments and other government entities are initiated.

The Secretariat has demonstrated leadership during implementation of the HRMS by establishing partnerships with the Public Service Commission, the Human Resource Management Divisions, as well as with participating departments and agencies to carry out priority initiatives. Key partners over the last three years have also included:

- Office of the Chief Information Officer
- Newfoundland and Labrador Statistics Agency
- Memorial University's Gardiner Centre

The Regional Senior Management Councils have also been engaged directly in strategy implementation. Other examples of broad partnerships include those formed for the government-wide Occupational Health and Safety initiative, as well as the Workplace Violence Prevention Program. Partnerships have also been created in targeted areas involving one or two departments. An example is the service quality partnership involving the departments of Human Resources, Labour and Employment, Government Services, and the Public Service Secretariat.

A communications plan is developed and implemented.

Communications plans were developed and implemented to support the launch and ongoing implementation of the HRMS. Specific communications initiatives included:

- Strategy Launch – The Secretariat employed several communications mechanisms for the launch, including information sessions with Deputy Ministers and executive members across Government; the release of a message by the Clerk of the Executive Council; posting of the strategy via the Public Service Network (PSN); and presentations to Departments/Divisions by Secretariat staff or Directors of HR.

- Strategy Update – The Clerk released a comprehensive review and written update report to all staff in fall 2010 that was widely distributed via the PSN. In addition, internal reports are made regularly to the Clerk and Treasury Board on implementation of strategy initiatives.
- Regional Senior Management Councils – The Secretariat’s Executive met with the Regional Senior Management Councils to update strategy progress and discuss various issues as well as the implementation of activities.
- PSN Releases – All employees are notified via the PSN as specific HRMS initiatives have commenced or have been implemented.
- Outlooks + Insights Publication – This new publication, intended to inform staff and managers in the public service of important issues and initiatives underway in the HR management field, includes a regular update on the HRMS.
- CLD Quarterly – Learning and development initiatives under the Strategy are regularly highlighted in the Quarterly along with information on upcoming training events to ensure that all employees are informed of the availability of these activities. The Quarterly also provides information on topics of interest and links to other tools on a number of subject areas (e.g. time management, generations in the workplace).
- Updates on Initiatives – The Secretariat’s Executive team meet with departments to discuss Secretariat initiatives and to provide an opportunity to discuss any HR concerns. Staff involved in specific strategy initiatives continue to respond to requests for information or progress updates.

Progress in the area of strategic HR management is monitored. The Secretariat has pursued improvements in HR management through regular monitoring of priority issues and initiatives. Key to the monitoring process is reporting on standardized HR metrics. The HR Accountability Framework, involving Deputy Ministers and their respective Director of Human Resources, has also been created and is continuing to be refined to address monitoring and reporting needs. HR accountability reports are received annually from all departments, are then analyzed and a summary is provided for discussion with the Clerk of Executive Council.

Organizational performance is monitored. Monitoring of one aspect of organizational performance has been carried out through Government’s Work Environment Survey (WES), as well as completion of departmental reviews under the workforce planning process. WES results have been analyzed at the corporate as well as departmental level, with findings shared and discussed with departmental executive teams, the Deputy Ministers of HR Committee, and HR Directors.

Discussion of the Results

Over the reporting period, the Secretariat has successfully designed and delivered an updated HRMS that provides a framework for identifying and managing external and internal challenges while building upon organizational strengths and opportunities across the core public service. As per the Secretariat mission statement, the focus has been on assisting government departments and agencies build human resource capacity by supporting and developing their workforce to maintain a high level of service excellence.

Supporting initiatives have included development or release of new or updated human resource policies and guidelines in the areas of succession management and market adjustment. New programs have been released including Tuition Reimbursement, “Potential” and “On-boarding”. In addition, an occupational competency model has been launched to identify core competencies for the public service, and the Centre for Learning and Development has expanded its course offerings to include training in succession planning, as well as enhancements to the Resource Management Package Program curriculum. Designed to welcome new employees, ensure their effective utilization in their hiring departments, and provide support for ongoing personal and professional development, these programs and initiatives work together to ensure staff are positioned to deliver exceptional programs and services to the citizens of Newfoundland and Labrador.

Utilizing the data gathered from work environment surveys, departmental workforce planning processes, ongoing research in the key HR communities of practice, and the results available from national comparisons, the Secretariat understands current issues and is well positioned for recommending and carrying forward initiatives to encourage and promote enhancements to human resources programs and support services. As such, it has built internal monitoring capacity to remain apprised of organizational issues, as well as to identify needs and gaps over the longer term.

Strategic Issue: Report on Performance 2008-09 to 2010-11

ISSUE - Strategic alignment of human resource capacity with government's service delivery needs

Government is characterized by employees who have strong co-worker relationships, high commitment to their work, and an impressive array of knowledge, skills and abilities.

The Secretariat is positioned to help departments and central agencies build upon these strengths and align their capacity with service delivery needs, by:

- Supporting a department's efforts in attracting and retaining the best employees.
- Emphasizing excellence in all aspects of employee performance and work.
- Encouraging and supporting employees to realize their full potential in the workplace.
- Creating internal mechanisms for knowledge management, career enrichment and succession planning.

Supporting the needs of employees often results in a workforce that is focused on the provision of service excellence and stronger public services for the province. The HRMS helps achieve this by:

- Building on potential,
- Strengthening Governments' competitiveness as an employer,
- Renewing the workplace.

Discussion of Overall Performance

Over the reporting period, the Secretariat has successfully designed and delivered an updated corporate HRMS that provides a framework for identifying and managing external and internal challenges, while building upon organizational strengths and opportunities across the core public service. As per the Secretariat's three-year goal, the focus has been on assisting the core public service build human resource capacity by supporting and developing their workforce to maintain a high level of service excellence.

During 2010-11, the Secretariat was able to meet its objective of developing strategies, initiatives and/or reports that identify and recommend best practices for renewal of the workplace. Two major projects were launched - the new job evaluation system, and the human resource information system, and extensive research has been compiled on best practices and potential tools available to support workload analysis, workplace health, and attendance management. Work is also underway on the design and implementation of new and updated policies, guidelines or strategies related to worker retention, including Duty to Accommodate, and Harassment and Discrimination-Free Workplace.

Government is also showcasing the value and variety of public service work to current and prospective future employees in a new campaign to be launched early in 2011-12.

SECTION III

Opportunities and Challenges Ahead

As it continues to make progress in a number of areas related to human resources, the Secretariat anticipates the following challenges and opportunities in the upcoming business cycle, 2011-2014.

Labour Market and Human Resource Trends

Newfoundland and Labrador continues to experience demographic and labour market change at an accelerated pace compared to the rest of the Canada. This means that we are seeing the impacts of an aging population sooner, and on a proportionately larger scale, than most other jurisdictions. We also remain a province with one of the highest percentage of citizens living in rural areas - a characteristic that brings some unique challenges to addressing the service needs of an older population.

Planning for these changes continues to be a focus for most public sector organizations. This presents an opportunity to develop appropriate human resource strategies and organizational policies to support departments and agencies through this period. This may include developing and preparing new leaders for enhanced roles in the public service and ensuring that the work environment is able to attract and retain the talent required.

The Secretariat plays a key role in bringing forward best practices in HR management and supporting their implementation across the core public service.

Implementation of the New Job Evaluation System

Government has committed to the implementation of a new Job Evaluation System (JES) for bargaining-unit employees within the public sector. This new system would be web-based, gender neutral and have the ability to evaluate positions based on factors such as skill, effort, responsibility and working conditions. Over the coming months, the main focus of the project will be on completing the development and rating of job class profiles, continuing research and development of a potential compensation framework, and preparing for discussions with employees and the public sector unions to support implementation of the new JES.

Geography/Travel Related to Learning and Development

The Centre for Learning and Development (CLD) is preparing to expand learning through Virtual Instructor-Led Training (VILT) formats. While classroom learning remains an important instructional method for the leadership program, the CLD respects the demands of the workplace and the challenges that its clients face over such a vast geography. VILT will offer the same programming via the use of technology by simulating the classroom in a virtual setting. The CLD anticipates being able to address the concerns of Government's employees in remote parts of the province as well as seasonal employees who are required to be onsite, or in the field daily. With the travel component removed, employees may be able to avail of more CLD program offerings. In partnership with the OCIO, the CLD is positioned to utilize technology to assist in Virtual Learning and Development. Microsoft Communicator is an integrated software suite that performs a number of different functions to meet communication needs, such as video calling, live meeting, web conferencing, and resource sharing. As well, partnerships with the private sector and the Centre for Distance Learning and Innovation present opportunities to explore new modes of training delivery and increase access to training in rural areas of the province or for employees for whom the traditional classroom approach is not suitable.

Workload Management Tools

The CLD has facilitated several strategic planning sessions with clients to assist in developing branch, division and individual work plans. The Potential Program will be another tool available for clients to create a broad picture of workload issues and related learning interventions, as required. The CLD is currently offering Workload Management (one day course) to assist in the development of the Self-Management competency under the Leadership and Management Development Strategy. The CLD is also exploring the development of an e-learning module to address time management issues called Time Management: Tips and Techniques. Opportunities exist to enhance access to and use of these and other tools to help employees and departments identify and address workload issues they are experiencing.

Human Resource Information System (HRMIS)

An HR information system will ensure the integrity of critical systems and provide a stable foundation for continuous improvement and modernization of government-wide policies and processes well into the future, and will offer a self-serve module to employees of the core public service, teachers, and pensioners. The project team, responsible for the system, is currently working on the design for phase one. Members of the team have been working closely with subject matter experts from across Government to validate requirements, work-flow and business processes. Work on phase one is expected to take approximately two years. Phase two will integrate pensioners' compensation into the system, and the third release will deliver advanced functions in the areas of organizational development, human resource planning, occupational health and safety and recruitment.

Financial Statements

Expenditure and revenue figures included in this document are unaudited and based on public information provided in the Report on the Program Expenditures and Revenues of the Consolidated Revenue Fund for the Year Ended 31 March 2011. Audited financial statements are a requirement at the government level and are made public through the Public Accounts process but the Secretariat is not required to provide a separate audited financial statement.
