

MINERAL DEVELOPMENT DIVISION - REHABILITATION PROJECTS

WHALESBACK MINE ABANDONED MILL SITE, SPRINGDALE

View of Whalesback Abandoned Mill Site - July, 2008.

Using a hydraulic hammer to break up the concrete foundations.

Using a hydraulic hammer to break up the concrete foundations.

Cutting off the reinforcing bars.

Cutting off the reinforcing bars.

The reinforcing bars were bent down for safety reasons.

All acid generating material had to be gathered and stockpiled.

Stockpiled acid generating material.

The hydraulic hammer was used to collapse a high concrete structure.

Collapse.

A view of the worksite from above. (before)

A view of the worksite after completion.

A view of the worksite from above. (before)

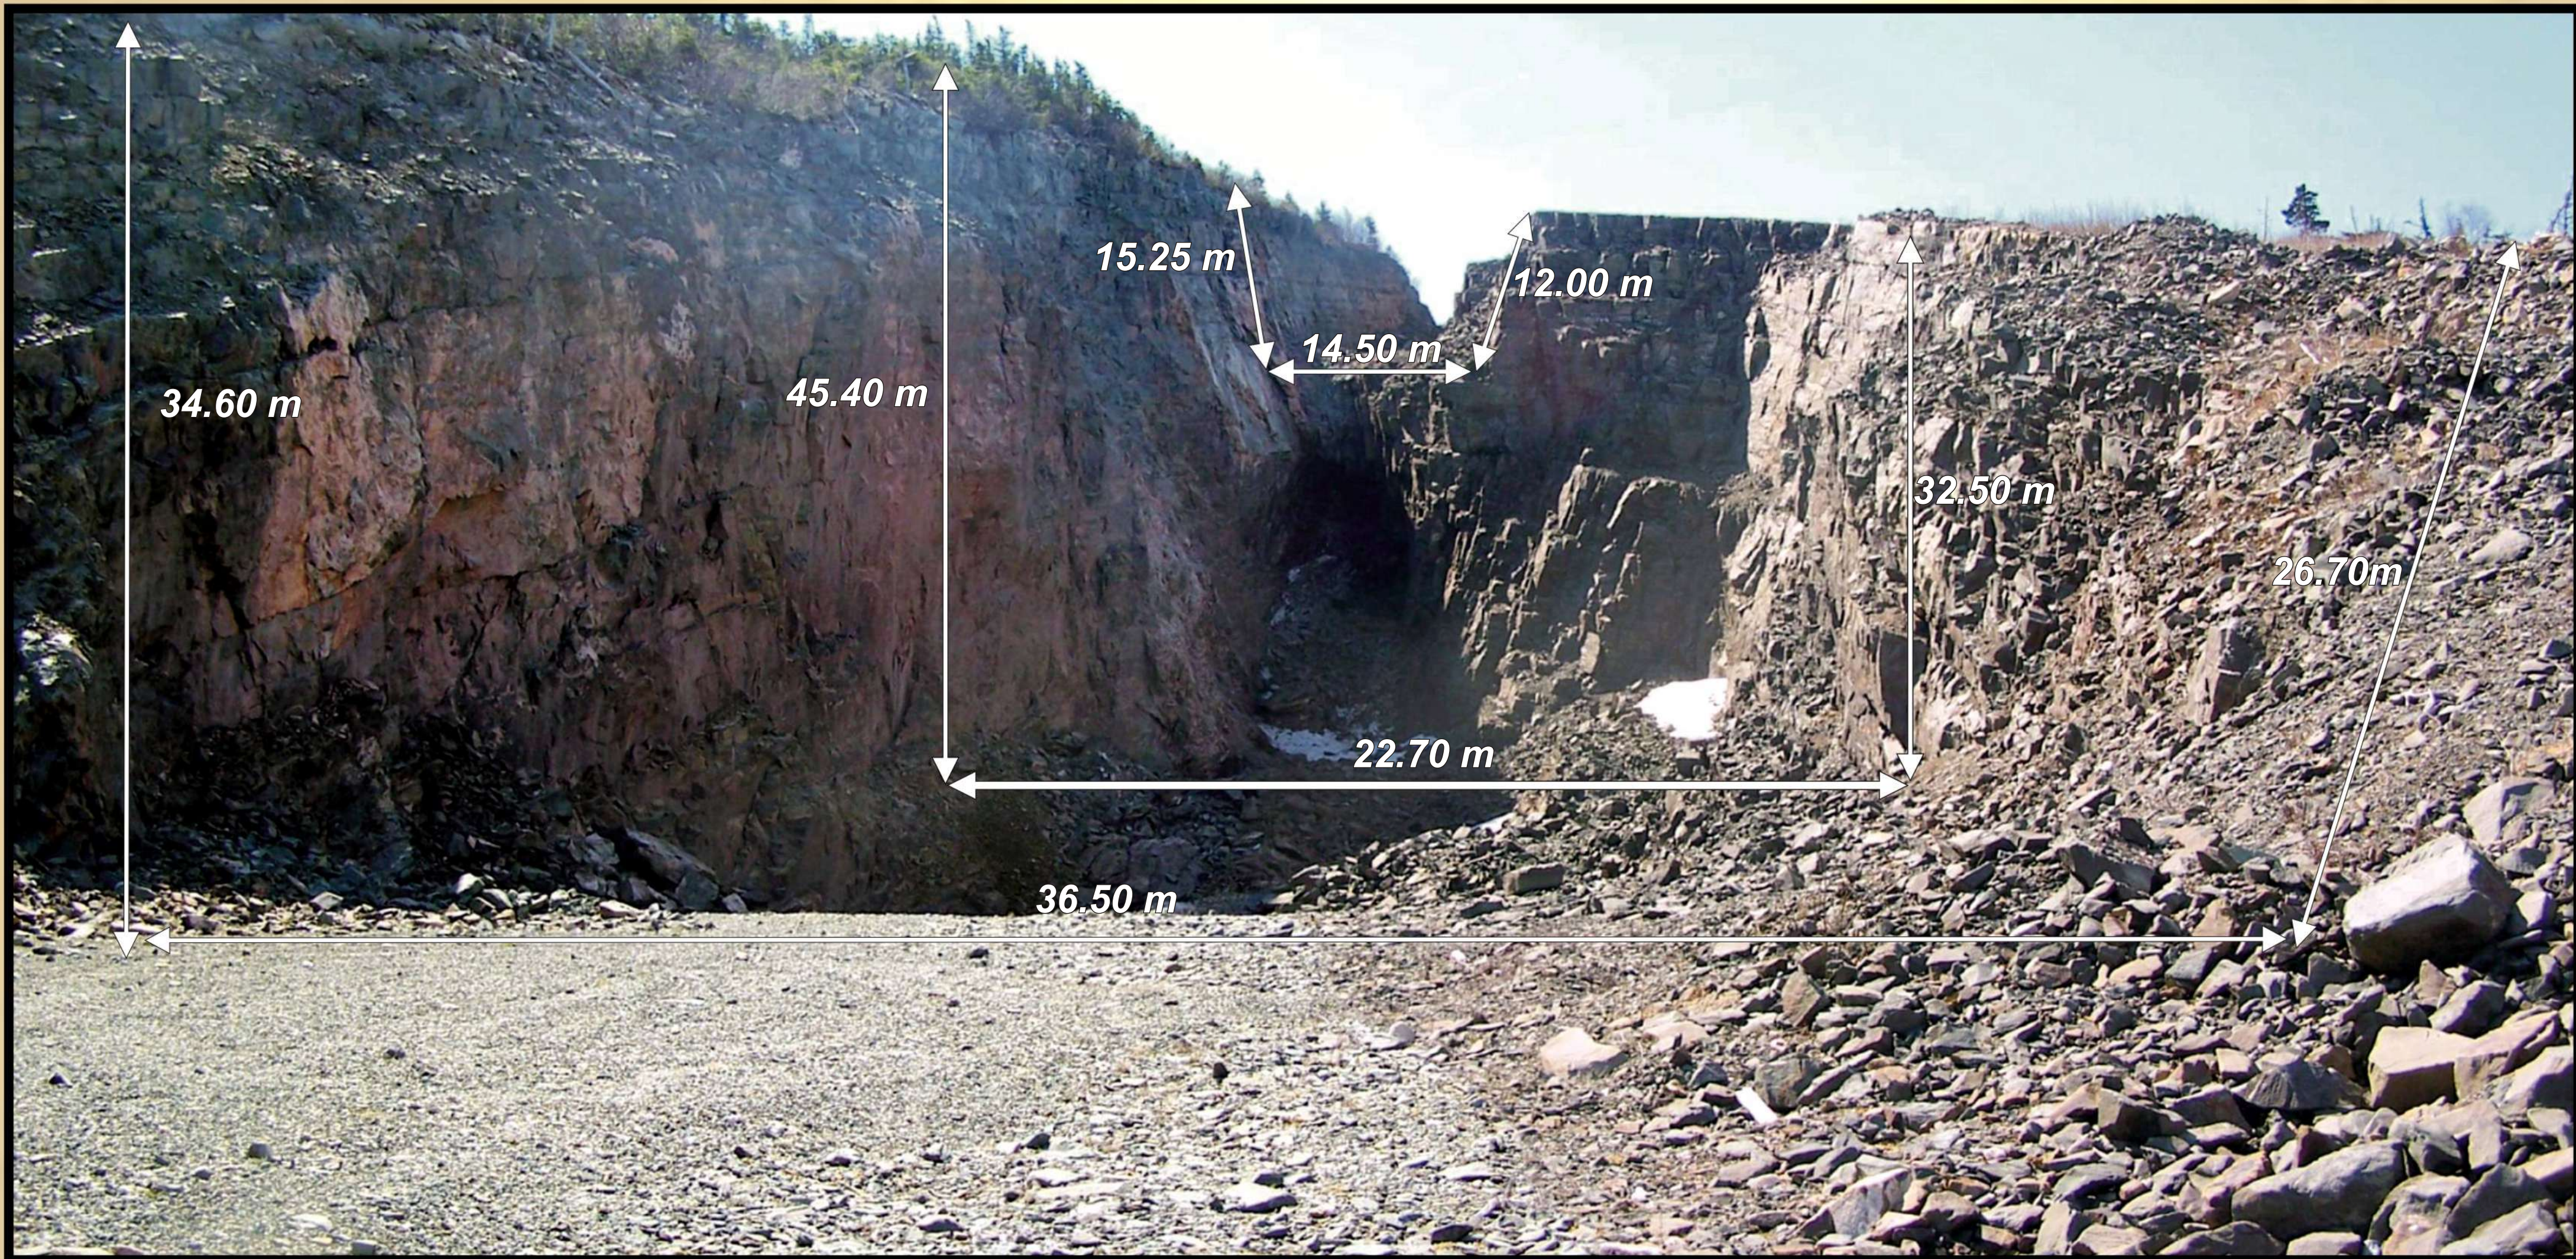

A view of the worksite after completion.

View of former mill site after rehabilitation.

COLLIER POINT ABANDONED BARITE MINE, NORMAN'S COVE

View of abandoned Barite Mine at Collier Point, May 2005.

After Rehabilitation.

View of Safety Berm at the base of the slope.

View of Safety Berm at the base of the slope.